BOLTON
Compton
Private

circa 1830-1850

Bolton was moved from Waldorf, Charles County, Maryland, to a new site on Coombs Creek near Compton, St. Mary's County in 1976. On the exterior the house, dating from circa 1830-1850, represents the retention of a style of architecture more prevalent during the second half of the 18th century. Constructed over the foundations of a smaller house, some fabric from this earlier house was reused in Bolton.

Bolton is a 1 1/2-story house with pedimented dormer windows and two exterior chimneys at each end. A one-story, late 19th century addition at the west end incorporated an earlier wing in its plan. The first-floor plan of the main block consists of a center hall extending the depth of the house with two rooms on each side. Most of the interior detail is late Federal in style.
